FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1876.

THE statements made by our Philadelphia correspondent as to the great depression which exists at the present time in the American labour market are quite in harmony with all States for several years. The free-trade party there finds much in this state of things to in New there finds much in this state of the whole population.

point a moral. Although there is a great deal per cent. of the whole population.

To understand this fact it is necessary to of truth in the argument they urge, no economist who takes a broad view of affairs would ascribe the whole of the depression to American protection. At the same time a great deal of it is undoubtedly due to that cause. the flying traveller, who slips the country by railroad, passes one over the country manufacturing establishment after another with the chimney smokeless, the furnace cold, and the yard deserted. He inquires the reason, and is told that there is no market for the products, and that therefore the men have all been dismissed, to find occupation where and how they can. The American United States Government show that the tariff has not only stimulated local industry, total church accommodation of the but it has overstimulated it. The profits we in many cases so absurdly high that more was any possible room for. The American market, which, though large, is a limited one, was glutted, and of course there was no market outside, because a protectionist country is generally at a disadvantage in competing for the markets of the world. The quence is that the unnatural congestion of labour in towns and in the manufactories has produced a reaction in the shape of as a sort of moral police that they established unnatural distress. An immense army of a system of concurrent endowment of all artizans is out of work, and men who have religions, with the approval of the English n in the habit of striking for four dollars a day are now either supported by charity or willing to accept the State pay for the services ment at from a dollar to a dollar and a half were several other denominations which con-me of the distress, however, is due to the great reaction after the speculative period which followed the war. The military excitement was succeeded by a commercial excite-a test, it now appears that the denominations ment, when the Americans thought that they which refused the State bounty have provided ment was succeeded by a commercial excite-

The Church of England whether it shall be so or not. In this colony we are in urgent need of railway extension. We have arrived at a point when our internal commerce is so far developed that we may judiciously extend our railways in several directions with a fair chance of having a remunerative traffic, and we could undoubtedly do this if we would only adopt the principle of making railroad land reserves pay largely the cost of construction. But our great want is labour. Nearly two years ago we had the official statement of the Chief Engineer that to push the works then proposed we required an additional army of ten thousand workmen. Still further extensions have since then been sanctioned, and others are pressed workmen. Still further extensions have since tion, and the latter four times the amount then been sanctioned, and others are pressed upon the Government, or by the Government have had the bulk of the State grant. Proupon Parliament. We have money in store bably it will be replied that very many people mough to keep us going for many months, put themselves down in the census as belongand we can get any quantity we can possibly require in the London market, where our debentures stand higher than ever, and where there is such a glut of capital that money is even seeking temporary investment at one per Churches receive public money, as they do at cent. Iron, too, the price of which enters so least in the case of the Church and School largely into the cost of railways, is now singularly cheap in England, and both rails and bridge plates may be secured on unusually advantageous terms. Everything, therefore, is propitious for pushing on our works with also bear the discredit religiously unwonted celerity. One thing only is wanting, turns of the REGISTRAB-GENERAL. and that is the requisite labour, and this labour is to be found on the other side the Pacific in almost unlimited. The total enrolment in all the Sunday-schools only know how to take it. If our Government is equal to the occasion, it will make a special effort to turn to the best advantage this most unusual combination of favourable circumstances. The colony has never had such a chance before; it will probably never have such a chance aga n. If the Administration is equal to its position, understands its duties, is really alive to the interest of the colony, and is prepared to accept the responsibility which this singular chance of fortune devolves upon it, it will earn the perpetual gratitude of the country; if, on the other hand, it is too indolent, too undecided, or too indifferent, or too timid, it will sink under the deserved contempt of the people whose affairs it has mismanaged.

Eveny year circulars are sent out from one of the Government departments to all the Churches in the colony asking for information respecting their extent of accommodation of children at Sunday-school, and many similar matters. As regularly these returns are bound up in official octavos, presented to members of Parliament, and preserved in public libraries. Whether they are worth the cost of collection or not, and if they are, whether this is the best method of collection, are questions which need not know something of the condition of other countries. It has been recently estimated that in England the Established Church numbers twelve and a half millions of the people, and the accommodation provided is for five and a half millions. It has also been maintained that the various Nonconformist bodies supply among them a larger accommodation than this, from which the inference is that England can accommodate at one time in all her churches not less than half her whole population. Official returns of Union is equal to sixty per cent. of the entire population. Measured by these tests New South Wales has about one-half the number of churches, or at least of seats, that wondered at, with so widely scattered a population; but for all that it is a state of which the Churches themselves ought mos seriously to consider. In the earlier years of the colony the authorities held public worship and religious instruction in such high esteem Government. Four denominations which they rendered to the State. But there ientiously refused such bounty. light do the figures now before us throw upon the result of this decision?

So far as the last census can be accepted as ment was succeeded by a commercial excitement, when the Americans thought that they would make up all the losses of the secession conditions by an immense industrial activity. They built railroads and established factories altogether in excess of their legitimate wants. This extravagance was of course followed by a relapse, and it will take some years before the country recovers a healthy tone.

This state of things of course furnishes a very serious subject for contemplation by American economists and politicians, but it also has a very immediate bearing upon the propertity of our colony. America's difficulty may be made Australia's opportunity, and supplied by the two denominations which members are an essential part of their communions? If they claim the credit numerically in the books of the Treasury they must also bear the discredit religiously in the re of the colony is 12 per cent, of the whole population. It ought to be 25 per cent, if the religious education of the young were suffici-ently provided for Here again we have the remarkable fact that the Churches unaided by the State have nearly half their estimated population enrolled; the Wesleyans, who are the least aided have one-third of theirs enrolled, the Presbyterians, the next least aided, have one-ninth enrolled, the Church of England one-eleventh, and the Church of Rome onetwelfth. We cannot help thinking that thes facts are of some value for the right they throw upon the much disputed question as to what denominations care most for the young. To the religious education of the young. make Government pay for this edu-cation is a very cheap way of satisfying one's conscience, to supply it by personal exertion and beneficence is some proof of earnest religious conviction. But we do not care to pursue this discussion further. We submit the information which the Government have been at the trouble and expense of collecting, arranged in the best form for com-parison, and we leave the denominations and the general public to correct or supplement it, and to make whatever other use of it they may deem best.

swe, whether this is the best method of collection, are questions which need not now be discussed. Here we have them for the year 1876, and we propose to examine them, such as they are, that the public who have to pay the cost may be able to judge of their value and turn them to the best use.

THE HYDRAULIC ENGINEER .- Mr. Clatrke, who has come to advise the Government on questions of water supply and sewerage, had an interview with the cretary yesterday morning. The Govern-icipation of Mr. Clarke's visit, requested Colonial Secretary yesterday morning. The Government, in anticipation of Mr. Clarke's visit, requested the advocates of the various schemes for supplying the metropolis with water to forward copies of any reports or suggestions which they might have. The documents thus procured, as well as the reports of the late Commission and of the present Sew age and Health Board, have been placed in Mr. Clarke's possession. As the time during which Mr. Clarke's possession. As the time during which Mr. Clarke can remain in the colony is limited, the Government, acting in conjunction with him, has made such arrangements as it was thought desirable to f bellitate acting in conjunction with him, has made such arrangements as it was thought desirable to facilitate the business which he has come about. And is there are many persons who will probably desire to make suggestions to the hydraulic engineer, or furn is he never additional data on matters relating to the water and sewerage questions, it has been arranged that all communications on those questions shall be transmitted to him through the Colonial Secretary.

REDFERN CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL.—The annual tea meeting in connection with this church was held on Tuesday evening, in the school-room; there was a good attendance. At the public meeting, which was held atterwards, in the church, the Rev. W. Slayer presided, and among the other gentlemen present were the Revs. R. T. Hills (of West Maitland). J. F. Kirby, W. Bradley, and A. Lloyd. Mr. John Bateup, the hon. secretary, read the report, which showed that there was a total of 3°8 scholars on the roll, three having died, 53 withdrawn, and 57 been admitted during the quarter. Including officers there were 32 teachers. The library contained nearly 1100 volumes. The balance sheet showed a small sum toredit. Mr. B. Morris (the hon. tressurer) gave on account of the Missionary Society's operations, from which it appeared that there had been liberal contributions during the year. The meeting was addressed by several min sters, and the speeches were agreeably interspersed with pieces of sacred music. evening the annual concert of the Caledonian Society of New South Wales took place in the Masonic Hall. There was a very large audience. The Hon. John Sutherland, M.L.A., presided. The programme was composed for the most part of favourite songs of Scotland, with one or two popular English and Irish ballads, and several cances and recitations. Mrs. Caldwell presided at the pianoforte, and with Miss Caldwell opened the entertainment by playing some salections of popular music. Mr. Andrew Fairfax was to have led off the vocal part of the concert with a song, but the chairman stated that he had received a letter from him apologising for his inability to attend from illness. ied off the vocal part of the concert with a song, but the chairman stated that he had re-eived a letter from him spologising for his inability to attend from illness. In place of the song omitted, a gentleman amateur, sang "My Heather Hills." A lady next rendered the "Scottish Blue Bells," with such acceptance as to be encored. Mis Bessie Harrison was equally successful in the song, "Sing sweet bird!" An English ballad and an Irish ballad were then rendered in succession by a gentleman and a lady amateur, both being encored. A re-itation of the "quarrel scene from the tragedy of Douglas" was well done by three gentlemen, and gave agreeable variety to the proceedings. A pleasing duct, "Afton Water," was next rendered, and was followed by the glee, "Ye Mariners of England," sung by the male voi es of the company. The Highland Fling was then danced by Master Campbell in Highland costume—the performance being warmly applauded. After a short interval the se ond part of the entertainment began. The leading features were the song "John Anderson my Joe, which was very agre ably rendered by a lady and encored; a sword uance by Master Hamilton, and a Scotch reel by Masters D. and W. Campbell and K. and A. M'Rae, all in Highland costume. The proceedings closed with "Auld Lang Syne." and the "National Anthem"—the chairman on behalf of the committee of St. Andrew's Benevolent Society, on whose behalf the concert was given, thanking the audience for their attendance.

FIRE.—About half-past 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a fire broke out towards the extremity of abowling alley at the rear of the Rose of Denmark Hotel, Pitt-street, near King-street. North of the hotel is Somervill's restaurant, in the back yard of which was a stove leaning against the bowling alley; the heat from which ignited the lining of the salo n. Portions of the lining, and of the straw padding used to deaden the soun s of the bowls were turnt; but before a great deal of damage had ensued the fames were extinguished with a few buckets of water. The property is insured in the new Mutual Office. On the alarm being given, the fire companies were speedily in attendance with their engines; but their services were fortunately not required.

Billiands.—The third match of the series of billiard contests between Mr. J. Roberts and Mr. J Desn. ca : e off at Mr. Gannon's, Exchange Hotel, yesterday evening. The room was well filled and the players very well received. The first half was not remarkable for exciting play Mr. Deane, although he played very carefully, only succeeded in placing 44 points to his credit, while his adversary scored 504. At the intermission the game stood at —Deane, 144: Roberts. 504—Mr. Robert largest break leng 164 points. On the game being resumed the same ill-luck clung to Mr. Deane. He made several miss cues, and missed some eavy shots. Mr. Roberts showed some brilliant all-round play, and aide iby the spot stroke put together breaks of 50, 72, and 160. When the acore stood Deane S56, Roberts 846, the latter by an excellent display of steady play made 139, and brought the score to 985. Mr. Deane did not score, and the champion easily made the required number in his next, thus beating his opponent by 114, st. counting the odds, by 814 points.

(By ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.)

BY ELECTRIC TRIEGRAPH.]
DENILIQUIN, TRURSDAY.
THE banquet to his Excellency Sir Hercules Robinson at the Royal Assembly Rooms, this evening, was attended by about seventy gent emen, the leading residents of the town and district, including squatters, free selectors, and tradespeople. Mr. W. Hay, member for the Murray, presided.

After the usual loyal toasts, the CHAIRMAN proposed
"The Health of his Excellency Sir Hercules Robinson."

The toast was d'unk with great applause.

His Excellency replied: Mr. chairman and gentlemen.—I thank you, Mr. Hay, for the kind terms in which you have proposed my health, and you, gentlemen, for the hearty manner in which you have received the toast. I am very glaf for my own sake that my Ministers allowed me to make this trip overland, as I have derived a great deal of pleasure as well as much useful information from my journey. During my stay in Victoria I have had an opportunity of seeing the richest portions of that great colony, and the resources of the country which I have traversed on my way from Bowning to of that great colony, and the resources of the country which I have traversed on my way from Bowning to this town are unsurpassed by those of the best parts of the old country. Curiously enough, my wanderings have been confined within the area concerning which Mr. Oxley, then Surveyor-General of Australia, made in 1817 a somewhat extraordinary prediction. In that year he explored from Bathurst a considerable distance south along the river Lachlan, and stated in his report to the Governor that he had demonstrated have not a shadow of doubt Lachlan, and stated in his report to the Governor that he had demonstrated bey not a shadow of doubt that no river could fall into the sea between Cape Otway and Spencer's Gulf. at least none deriving their waters from the eastern coast, and that the country south of the parallel of 30° and west of the meridian of 147°30 east was uninhabitable and useles for all purposes of civilised man. How dangerous it is to prophecy. The whole of the waters of the Dayling, Lachlan, Murruphitizes, and Murray of the Dayling, Lachlan, Murruphitizes, and Murray. of the Darling, Lachlan, Murrumbidgee, and Murray, in short the drainage of the whole of that part of in short the drainage of the whole of that part of the country is discharged into the sea between Cape Otway and Spencer's Gulf; and within the boundaries of Mr. Oxley's wilderness are situated the whole of Riverina, nearly the whole of Victoria, and the seuthern part of South Australia —comprising together some of the richest and most valuable lands in Australia That weless and uninhibitaly. valuable lands in Australia

That useless and uninhabitable country is now covered with flocks andherds and waving corn-fields, is dotted over with busy bustling townships and homesteads, and is inhabited by thriving communities of British citizens inhibited by thriving communities of British citizens striling to attain a high moral standard, enjoying to he utmos' decree constitutional liberty, and proving by their loyalty and good order how well they appreciate its blessings ever since. An incident occurred during my visit to Hill End soon after my arrival in the colony. I have endeavoured to ascertain before visiting any country district the subjects which interest the local mind. The incident to which I refer was as follows:—I was accompanied to the so-called Golden Mountain, which was then in a state of active eruption, by one of the Ministers, and at a dinner which was given to me by the inhabitants at a dinner which was given to me by the inhabitants of the town, that gentleman, in responding to the toast of "The Ministry," delivered an excellent and elaborate speech upon the subject of the Border treaties with Victoria and South Australia which had just been negotiated by his Government. A resident of Hill End, who spoke next, in referring to the Minister s speech, remarked, "What do we care up here about the Border duties? Let the hon. gentleman take off the gold escort duty and we will talk to him." You will agree with me that I was justified in taking his lesson to heart; and I accordingly, as I have said, when visiting a country district always have said, when visiting a country district, always endeavoured to ascertain the subjects of local interest, and to confine my observations to them. At Albury the most engrossing subjects were the Railway and the Border Duties. Now you already have the rail-way here, and although you are no doubt subject to way here, and atthough you are no doubt subject to some of the annoyances arising from the Border duties, yet, owing to the different character of the products of the district, you are not nearly so bad off in this respect as the Albury people. Besides, I have already dealt upon this matter at Albury, and you know what my opinions are on the subject. Yesterday I attended to what is are on the subject. Yesterday I attended to what is undoubtedly a subject of interest here, immigration. What then is left for me to touch upon this evening? I fear nothing but the land laws, a question which, no doubt, occupies at present here a large share of public attention; but it is one upon which I could scarcely with propriety enlarge, as it has become in a great with propriety enlarge, as it has become in a great measure a party question, and has given rise, I fear, to an antagonism of classes which is greatly to be re-gretted, and which, unless corrected, will assuredly lay the foundation of future social disasters. I may, however, without going beyond my province, allude to the general principles which should be borne in mind on all sides in the appropriation of the public estate. First, I take it that the object sought to be accomplished is the domestic settlement of the country, whether on a pastoral or agricultural basis country, whether on a pastoral or agricultural basis is, I think, not of much consequence, so long as you have an industrious and thrifty people located on the land, and have the produce of the soil in solid comfort and individual in ependence; and, secondly, it should be borne in mind that produce, whether it be anould be borne in mind that produce, whether it be cattle, sheep, corn, wine, tobacco, silk, or sugar, that is the form in which it will eventually be employed. No legislation can permanently alter this: and any attempt to contravene this natural law by artificial regulations and restrictions will prove not only ineffectual, but mischievous. A will prove not only ineffectual, but mischievous. A force pump will send water up hill as long as it is in the pipe; but when you get to the end of the pipe the water will then find its level, and the higher you pump it, the greater the force with which it will rush to its natural destination. Many years ago an ancient female relative of mine, whose remarks were often as deep as those of Mr. F.'s aunt in reference to the "mile-stone on the Dover Road," returned t Ireland after a trip through the manufacturing districts of Lancashire. Her kind heart bled for the miseries of the people of Ireland after the famine of 1846, and she confided to me in all seriousness, as a inserted of the people of Ireland after the famine of 1846, and she consided to me in all seriouaness, as a solution of the Irish difficulty, that all that was wanted was that Government should build them manufacturing towns. The remedy thus suggested was, you will agree with me, somewhat unpractical, but was not in reality much more about than would be any attempt here to divert the land from its natural and its most profitable employment. By keeping leading principles of the kind in view, this difficult land question may, I think, be settled without giving rise to any serious permanent antagonism between classes. With millions upon millions of acres of unalienated public land there is surely room senough and to spare for all; I trust therefore, that, through the wisdom of the lagislature, this matter may be arranged in a spirit that will leave no heritage of bitterness or hate behind; and that the future historian of Australia, when describing the foundations upon which was built the prosperity of what will then be one of the great nations of the earth, will be able truthfully to paraphrase the words of the "Lays of Ancient Rome," and say—

"Then none was for a party, then all were for the State;" These the great man blood the soor, and the new rear least.

The Economical Production of Stram.—The Loads Mercusy of August 19 publishes the following:

"Experiments have just icen concluded at Manchester which have a most important bearing upon the question of the economical production of steam and the duration of our coal supply. The experiments were made with one of Plant's improved Gallowsy boilers, fitted up with the casing and seating recently patented by Mr. James Reilly, of Manchester, at the patentee's chairworks, Cornbrook. The object of the invention is to utilize the waste heat which is usually absorbed by the brickwork surrounding boilers of the ordinary construction, and this has been most affectually accamplished by the substitution for the brickwork of a metal casing and seating, in which the boiler is placed, which serves as a water chamber, or auxiliary boiler, into which the water is pumped prior to being passed into the boiler. The result is that additional heating surface to the extent of double that of an ordinary boiler is obtained, and hence a much larger quantity of water is evaporated for each pound of coal consumed than has hitherto been accomplished. Private experiments were made with the casing in May last, and the results so far exceeded the most favourable results on record as to git erice to a desire on the part of some who were interested in the subject for further experiments. Accordingly a public trial was arranged to take place on Tuesday and Wednesday last, which was conducted by Mr. Ashton, C.E., of Cathedral Vard, Manchester. The experiment was witnessed by a number of socientifie and practical gentlemen, several of whom watched the trial with the closest attention throughout, and careful y noted the results. The results were highly satisfa tory, the rate of evaporation (calculating the temperature of the water at 212: Fahr.) varying from 12:78 to 13:78 bl of water for each by one of

and is closely bound up with that of the probable duration of our e al-fields."

NEOLECTING TO CLEANSE CATTLE TRUCKS—The Great Northern and Mid'and Great Western of freiand Ratiway Companies were lately prosecuted at the suit of the Attorney-General, for neglecting to comply with the order of the Pri y Council, directing them to disinfect their cattle trucks. Evidence was given by an inspector of the Veterinary Department of the Privy Council that he found the trucks in a very filthy condition at Drogheda and Trim. The defence of the Great Northern Company was that the day on which the inspection was made was the fair day of Drogheda, and that owing to the pressure of business the trucks were overlooked, although orders had been given that morning to disinfect them. The Midland Company submitted on the ground that the date of the alleged offence, the lat of January, was so remote that thay could not now secertain whether their servant had discharged their orders or not. The Great Northern Company was fined £30, and the Midland Company $20.
